FOREWORD

HIS is the third successive year that the Senior Class of the Ohio Northern University has published the "Northern." The increasing greatness and vigor of the University, and the changing condition of student generations largely mould the form and fancies of the book. The purpose of the present Northern Board has been to look from every view-point of the student and picture all the phases of university life. We have attempted to give due consideration to every interest of the student and to avoid over-emphasis of one feature at the expense of others—to make this a truly representative publication. The better features of former volumes we trust we have not forgotten. Oncoming classes will blot out the mistakes of this edition. May each succeeding "Northern" be better than this, the third volume of our University Annual—The Northern of Nineteen Hundred Thirteen.

THE COLLEGE WORLD

THE SENIOR CLASS

No more boys and girls, but Men and Women
Their school work near complete, now look they out
On life's bright path through window hiding moor and fen,
Revealing only mountain tops, visions that rout
All fears, misgivings, clouds—dispelling every doubt.

Now dazzling dreams of noble work for Home,
For Country or for God—of victory indeed,
Gilds every view, swells every heart. Where'er they roam
The paths drop fortune, dreams come true! May all succeed:
The Northern reflects the wishes of all—Godspeed.

OLD NORMAL

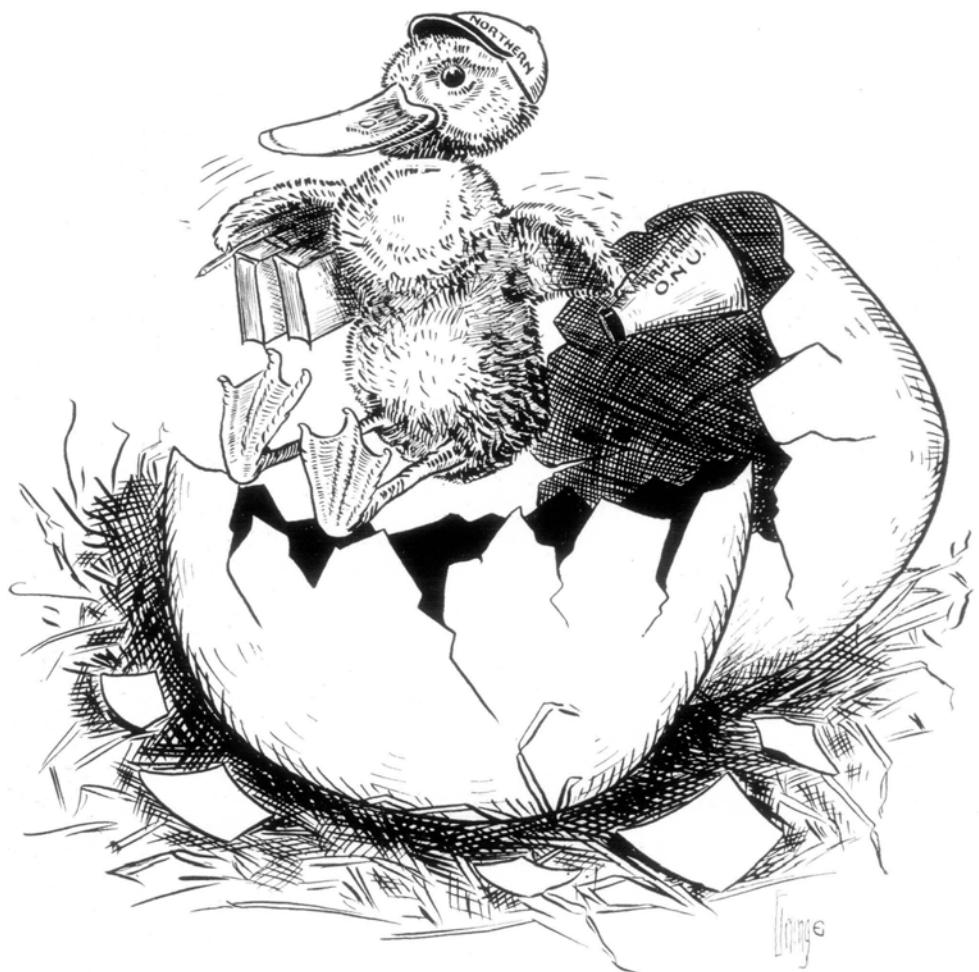

PROPOSED LEHR MEMORIAL

Proposed Lehr Memorial

S a fitting and lasting monument to the labors of Doctor Lehr, the beautiful and massive Lehr Memorial will soon be erected on the campus at Ada, Ohio. During the past few years the plans for this building have been pushed steadily forward. In the near future, certainly not later than June or July next, the Memorial will pass from an abstract fancy into a concrete fact. In the year of 1907, the services of Rev. A. A. Thomas, an enthusiastic alumnus of the institution, were secured as Field and Fiscal Secretary; since that time he has been active in securing funds for this worthy project. To him also has been assigned the task of securing funds for the College Farm. The approaching annual commencement will bring with it the glad message that these two funds have reached a grand total of more than $70,000, offerings chiefly of the graduates and ex-students of the university. Especially is this true of the Lehr Memorial fund. Love and loyalty reach a high-water mark in giving to the Lehr Memorial. Since the last annual was issued, two persons have given $1,000 each to this fund; namely, E. W. Gilbert, of Los Angeles, and Kernan Robson, of Berkley, California. The President, Dr. A. E. Smith, has been authorized to commence the structure, and in keeping with this authority, sod was cut for this purpose on the old campus, October 26, 1912, since which time, according to the conditions of the contract, one-third of the individual subscriptions falls due; and several thousand dollars have already been paid into the treasury. The event of sod-cutting, which occurred during the Lehr Memorial Jubilee week of October 23rd to 26th inclusive, was a very impressive one. It consisted of singing, a forceful address by Dr. Smith, and the turning of the sod by Dr. Smith, Dr. Lehr and Secretary Thomas. So it is easy to see that what once was thought to be impossible is now at the very door of the possible; and soon will be heard the glad chorus of hammer and saw, re-enforced by the click of the chisel and music of the trowel in the erection of this magnificent structure, not only as a valuable college asset to the Ohio Northern University, but at the same time to perpetuate the life-work of the honored Founder of the Institution.

EDUCATION

Normal Department

HALF CENTURY ago a successful young school-master, with a vision for furthering higher educational ideals and practices throughout Ohio, established a school for teachers in a small village. The school-master was Dr. Henry Lehr, the small village became the thriving college town of Ada, and the school grew to be the Ohio Northern University.

The growth of the school was rapid from the first, because its democratic spirit attracted many students whose means for education were limited. In the course of time the school enlarged its work, until we find the Normal School a department in the University, and as the school changed in the character of its work, so did the Normal department.

In this age of specialization and professional training a lawyer can no longer read law in some office, then take the state bar examination, but it is necessary for him to obtain the major part of his education at a professional school. Sixty years ago the young medical student taught school during the winter months and then studied medicine the remainder of the year under the village doctor. The teaching profession has evolved much as law and medicine. But for a number of years the leading educators of the land have sought to raise the standard requirements for the training of teachers. Although the evolution of the school has been slow, yet the results are great, for today it requires more than an understanding of the branches to be taught plus a certain amount of technical psychology to equal one good pedagogue. While both are essential they do not prepare a teacher to meet the needs of the average child of today. This means that the teacher must understand more fully the developing child under her care, if the child is not to be rudely experimented upon. Adaptation of the subjects taught to the different phases and needs of the child's development constructs the bridge which saves the school room from much wasted effort.

To secure this, changes have necessarily been made in the curriculum of the department. A high school course or its equivalent in preparatory work taken in the college is prerequisite to the normal course. At least one-half of the collegiate work is professional in character. School room procedure is studied in its relation to the child's physical and psychical nature. Under the present Dean, the thorough professional training of a teacher for active duty is being emphasized as never before. The aim of the department and those whose work is there may well be said to be "Efficiency in training in order that we may bring about greater efficiency in education."

The following complete record of the class will be found on Dean Mohler's books in the year 1923.

Tannehill is a tobacco inspector for the Tobacco Trust.

Hill is a specialist on ingrowing toenails and painless removal of corns.

Wertz's health failed from being up at night so much with his girl while in Ada, and is recuperating on a farm.

Smith is a partner in a tea room in Bucprus. Ohio.

Barr is now Commandant at O. N. U.

Hugh Burke is in a lawsuit for being too extravagant with carbolic acid in the treatment of conjunctivitis.

Campbell neglected his profession, entered in politics and is now dog catcher in his home town.

Renshaw is a nervous wreck from overstudy.

Bowers is the author of the book entitled "The Process of Deodorizing and Diluting Water."

Pearce is working for the government, collecting mosquitoes and other material for research work, Thinks he will be promoted if all above him die.

Reynolds is taking Cowboy characters for moving picture plays in Oklahoma.

Herbel is selling hot air balloons at Cedar Point.

Kinney is hopelessly entangled in the meshes of love. Has written several books but can't get them published.

Tum is an expert kodak man. He is working for a specialist taking before and after pictures.

Plymale is making a fortune from the sale of his "Beeswax Bitters."

Joe Burke studied fireflies at Ada while buggy riding and now has invented a light without heat.

Volmer, "the bureau of information" is a prominent reporter for the Vermillion News.

Kelly is still advocating the use of sudorifusion for the treatment of all wounds.

Green has written several books on the complications of malaria, but failed to find a sale for them. He is now one of the best oyster shuckers in Maryland.

Zimmerman is in the employ of a large importer of birds teaching young mocking birds to whistle.

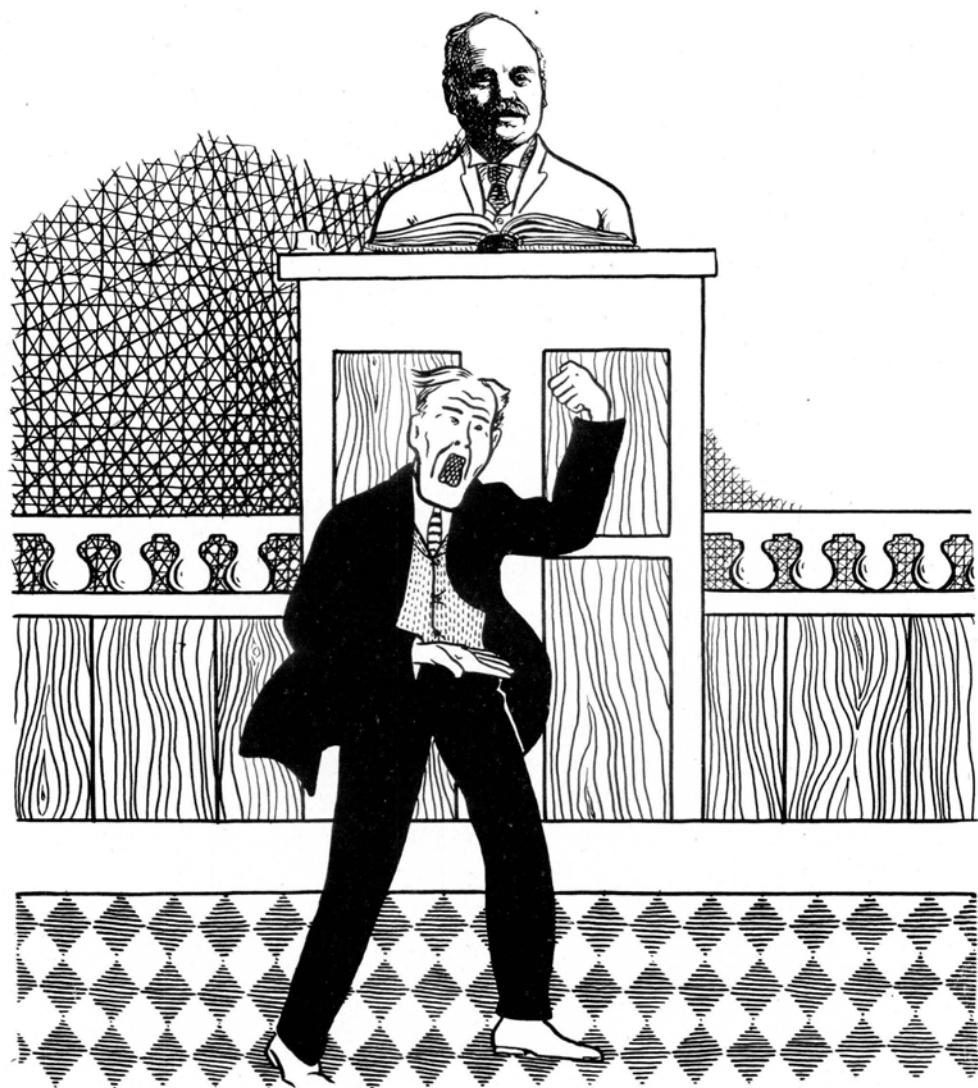

Lee's girl disappeared shortly after he graduated and he is still looking for her.

Tacep has settled down in matrimonial bliss.

Mastin is now playing ball with the Chicago Cubs.

Pease has a splendid position making moth balls for a large drug plant.

LAW

N NORTHERN C

SAMUEL P. AXLINE, A. M., L. L. D.
DEAN OF THE COLLEGE OF LAW

History of the Law Department

HE College of Law of the Ohio Northern University was established by the Trustees as a department of the University in 1885. J. Ross Lee was the first Dean. During the second year of service, however, he was compelled to resign because of ill health and Robert E. McDonald of Carrollton, Ohio, was chosen to fill the vacancy. Mr. McDonald served for a few months and Frank M. Dotson now of Toledo succeeded him. After serving for one year he also resigned and the present Dean, S. P. Axline was elected by the Trustees as his successor.

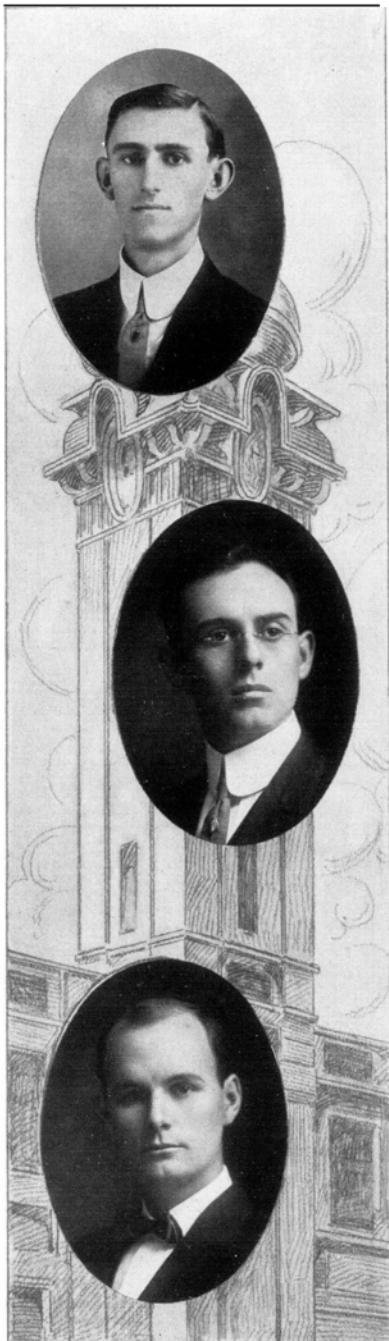

The first graduate was Robert E. McDonald, who completed the course in 1886 under Dean Lee. The next three graduates were John A. Sullivan, who is located at Passac, New Jersey, J. Frank Axline of Findlay, and Robert C. Myers of Portsmouth, Ohio.

In all more than seven hundred and fifty have been graduated from the College of Law since it was founded, and it is safe to say that they are practicing in nearly every state in the Union. Many are holding important judicial positions, and others stand high in the legal profession. At the present time one of Northern's law graduates is a member of the Supreme Court of Ohio—Judge R. M. Wanamaker; two are in the National Congress, Hon. Frank B. Willis and Hon. S. D. Fess; and about forty are serving either as members of the General Assembly or as Judges of the several courts in Ohio.

The rapid growth of the Law Department since its organization is due very largely to the extraordinary ability of the present Dean, S. P. Axline. Professor Axline is exceedingly efficient in all his work. As a lawyer and teacher he has the very highest estimation of all who know him or have taken work in his classes. He is one of the most logical thinkers and one of the most diligent and best informed lawyers in Ohio today. He is a clear, forceful speaker, an elegant debater, and a progressive in every sense of the word. He has mines of material to draw upon, he knows the law, he is thorough in his work and strong in his methods, and has made his department one of the most valuable at Ohio Northern.

Another able instructor in the department is Professor Jacob Swart. He is one of the best students Ohio Northern has graduated in recent years. He is another one of the Pennsylvania men, who has come to the O. N. U. and made good. "Jake" is an all-around student—just as good in science or philosophy as he is in the law. We predict for him a brilliant future, and we know that some time, Ohio Northern will be proud to claim him as one of her graduates and teachers.

Agriculture

HE year just drawing to a close has been one of great encouragement to those interested in the development of the College of Agriculture of the Ohio Northern University. Though not as great an advance as we would wish, yet the past year has seen the number of students more than doubled over the first year of the life of the college.

From this we gather great encouragement and are expecting and planning for the repetition of this year's record. Steps are being taken to provide suitable class-rooms and laboratories for the continuation of the course the coming year in a way that will add much value to it and should attract many students desiring work along agricultural lines. At no time in the history of agriculture has there been such a demand for knowledge as at the present, and this condition is being manifested in the increasing number of students coming to our school for agricultural education; and in just the measure that the University meets this demand, and supplies the wants in curricula and equipment, just so far will the success of the college of agriculture be assured.

In the way of practical demonstrating equipment we are rapidly accumulating a very creditable supply. The flocks and herds on the University farm as well as the mechanical equipment are reaching a very fair degree of completeness. For this we are indebted largely to our many friends, through the efforts of our President and the financial secretary, A. A. Thomas. Mr. Thomas reports having secured more than $70,000 for the O. N. U. and of this including stock $8,000 is for the university farm. The farm itself has yielded in grain and stock a fair income, which, with the tuition of students has justified in a financial way the establishment of the college of agriculture.

So encouraging has been our work in agriculture that we are contemplating the establishment of a course in Domestic Science, or in other words, a home makers' course. Work is to be started in the summer term along this line under the direction of Miss Helen Arms, who has had wide experience in teaching domestic art.

The course in agriculture that we have been offering covers two years or seven terms and so far three young men have completed this course and are to be awarded certificates in agriculture at the coming commencement. Two of these graduates are already out on farms demonstrating the practicability of what they have learned and from all reports are making good, which fact after all is our greatest satisfaction, for to have helped some one to better success is success indeed.

The Legend of 1913

(To Capt. A. V. Wangenheim)

This is a wonderful story
Told when the twilight falls
And the students flock together
When the evening bugle calls.

Four captains came to Northern,
Bright young fellows were they;
Each hoped to win the dear, old flag
That is awarded on contest day.

These captains worked in the day time,
These captains worked in the night,
Studying the new regulations,
Interpreting each movement right.

An hour a day they shouted,
Drilling their men in the street;
Through the mud and dust they marched them,
Never heeding the cold or the heat.

Then came the glorious camp week,
Nothing of play out there,
But march and drill from sun to sun,
Was the daily bill of fare.

At last it was "contest" morning,
With its bright and shining sun;
Each Company drilled well the program
Each confident they had won.

Some said that "D" did best,
Others would have it "C,"
Still others, 'twas no use talking,
The flag would go to "B."

But the judge decided rightly,
As such judges usually do;
And the winner of that contest
Would be a surprise to you.

For at the annual reception,
The president rose up to say
That the flag for '13 and '14
Would be carried by Company -- .

The History of Co. B

MORE than a quarter of a century ago Company B came into existence in the Ohio Northern University. It was one of the original companies, and was organized in 1877 under Capt J. P. Leaf. Company B has been the winner of six Flag contests since its organization. The first contest was won by Company B in 1894 under the command of Capt. H. C. Pugh, the second in 1897 under Walter Elliott, the third under the command of Capt D. A. Fitzgerald in 1899, and in 1900 with Capt. L. S. Miller in command the company won the Flag. In 1903 H. W. Steele piloted the company to victory, and the sixth victory was won by the company under the command of Capt. Colen in 1907.

Company B has always been noted for the strength of her organization, and for the support of her individual members. From the ranks of the company have gone such men as J. J. Farley, Mgr. of the Tucker Electrical Construction Company of New York City, Virgil H. Mowles, now Deputy Auditor of the State, Dr. P. I. Tussing of Lima, and Walter Elliott the present postmaster of Ada.

History of Co. C.

HE military department of the Ohio Normal University, the former name of the school, was established in the fall of 1882. Four Companies were formed, and two years later, in 1884, the U. S. government detailed an officer from the regular army, who became the head of the military department.

In 1888, the first contest was held between two companies of drilled men. Until the contest of 1891, the two companies of drilled men were the only ones to enter in the contest for the flag. Previous to this time, Co. C. was a company of recruits, and as they became more efficient in drilling, they were promoted to the other companies. This plan was changed in 1891 and Co. C. entered the contest as a regular company, being commanded by Capt. H. H. Spaulding. The Co. took second honors. Although the Company has been unfortunate in contesting for the flag, it has made a splendid record.

During the last five years C. has made an especially good showing, having won the flag once, and the indoor trophy twice. Also, during recent years, it has won the honor of having the best drilled man five times, and has won all of the shooting contests.

Several on the Company's roster have held prominent places in the military department, such as the offices of colonel, senior and junior major (these offices being in existence till 1904); since then the office of major. The present Major, W. E. Simpson, was the Captain of Co. C. last year.

The following are some of the honors Co. C. has attained:

Color contest, 1911, H. C. Dobbins, Capt.

Indoor contest, 1908, E. E. Dobbins, Capt.

Indoor contest, 1912, C. R. Leavens, Capt.

The best drilled in the battalion:

1895, J. O. Roth, Color contest.

1909, H. C. Dobbins, Color contest.

1900, H. C. Paul, Color contest.

1911, C. R. Leavens, Color contest.

1907, Sergt. Hamilton, Indoor contest.

1911, H. E. Dobbins, Indoor contest.

1908, F. L. Diddely, Indoor contest.

Franklin Literary Society

THE Franklin Literary Society was established in the year 1871 with a mere handful of members. Since that time it has grown till its members in all parts of the world number thousands, and the growth in influence and power has been surpassed by no other organization connected with the Ohio Northern University.

The past few years have experienced a little decline in her activities, probably due to the increased efficiency in the literary departments of the college proper. The work done in the English classes is of such a nature as to require much of the student's time and energy, hence the facility for literary preparation for the stage is naturally curtailed to some extent.

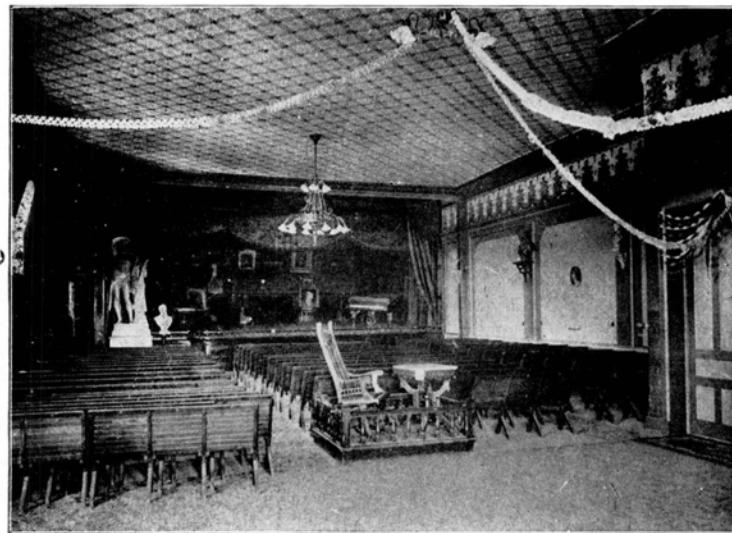

The past year however, has witnessed many creditable programs in the Franklin Hall. The work has been original compared with the work in former years. The debates have been carefully prepared as a rule, and the participants have been many.

The Franklin Society boasts of carrying the inter-society base ball honors the past year as well as several years previous.

It must need be with deep regret that the Franklins of nineteen thirteen leave their hall never too meet in the same capacity again, never to again engage in forensic mortal combat, to be separated from the wholesome surroundings of her classic environment. But as we go out to enter upon the fields of other unconquered battles we will have the assurance that the noble work will go on. There will be men and women to fill the place of all who depart. It has been so, and it will continue for the Franklin spirit is abroad, unable to be pent up, there is no end to a noble work.

How many have gone forth from this hall to fill positions of honor and trust? And as the years come and go, who shall measure the influence that has emanated from this centre, or who shall say what grand possibilities are yet in store for the Franklin Literary Society? We are rapidly borne onward in the current of time, ever entering upon new scenes, beholding new beauties, and enduring new trials. Others will take our places when we have gone from her embrace. Thus it is consoling to the Senior of nineteen thirteen to have the assurance of the Franklin perpetuation.

The Franklin Society has moulded the character of hundreds of young men and women, she has changed the life course of other hundreds by the splendid opportunity given them for the development of public speech. Some are foolish enough to say that the day of the orator is passing, that the news-press is monopolizing this field. How absurd it is to think such is or ever will be the case. Such arguments cannot be based on a careful observation of the demands of the times. There will ever be a place of honor and renown for the individual who can stand in the presence of an audience and express logical thought in an elegant and fluent manner. The world is demanding the orator today more than ever before. The man or woman who neglects his or her training along this line is omitting from their lives the most valuable privilege offered any college student. It has ever been the prime motive of the Franklin Society to offer this valuable training, and her efforts the past years surely have not been in vain, because in pursuing the past for a few examples and standing in the fore front we notice many old Franklins.

Philomathean Literary Society

Motto: "Labor Omnia Vincit."

Organized Aug. 14, 1879. G. W. Ruthledge, 1st President.

Presidents during past year:

O. G. Lyons, Cora Belle Luft, Earl F. Zeigler, E. J. McDaniel, E. W. Combs.
Executive Committee.

Harry Restofski, F. M. Elliott, E. J. McDaniel, A. J. Morgan, Fred Feasel.

THE YEAR'S GRISD.

The purpose of a literary society is unchangeable. The Philomathean society has tried to remain true to its ideal thruout the pears of its existence. It has emphasized, "the Society for the Student." Much has been said recently about the collapsing of the society spirit. It is not. The vim and vigor but not the methods of former days is still extant. Why should there be the cry for the old days? The tenor of the university has changed; a progressive literary society adjusts its activities to meet present conditions. This society can point with pride to the year's work proving that actual results are obtained as never before.

THE PHILO DIPLOMA.

A new feature added to our society the past year, is the granting of a diploma for meritorious literary work. These diplomas can be secured in debate, oratory and music. Nothing has ever given a greater incentive to original productions. Many have registered for the various diplomas and several have been granted. Earning a diploma is a worthy honor and a valuable asset to any student.

THE NEW CONSTITUTION.

If the state of Ohio needed a new constitution so did the Philos. They were living under the jurisprudence of 1888 and it was found inadequate to present day methods. After careful planning, a new constitution was adopted, some of the important changes following: all officers hold their positions the entire term; fees for men and women 50c per term, no initiation; provision made for keeping copies of all meritorious productions; important changes in the committee workings.

LITERARY EFFORTS.

The making of a program is a problem for study. It must be an opportunity for the original work of the partaker and an education and amusement for the audience. For sei-eral months the Philomathean programs have been combinations of heavy and light numbers. The splendid and enthusiastic attendance at every program proved the wisdom of this policy. Several one act plays have been featured. One special effort in drama, "Mr. Bob," was a decided success.

SOLICITING.

The most radical change since former days has been in the soliciting methods. Instead of the night-prowling, throng-going crowds that so disturbed the new and old students for the first part of every term, a quiet but effective method was inaugurated which makes room for individual soliciting. On account of this change the literary societies have been censured for loss of "spirit." But the change was demanded by students, townspeople, and faculty. When the societies will work as faithfully under the new regime as the old, their results will be more far reaching. The Philo Society adopted this method before its joint inauguration, and its efficacy has been proven.

THE PHILO LIBRARY.

In a handsome alcove in the University library rooms, the Philo library now occupies a place. It was changed in order that the usefulness of the library might be increased thru its availability. Besides, the 1500 volumes greatly augments the value of the University library. It is open to all students. Once again the society deserves credit for its progressive spirit. Already a wide use of the volumes have been made.

Present Executive Committee:

W. L. Manahan, W. E. Bilderback, D. E. Barnes.

Adelphia's Past, Present, and Future.

THE Adelphian Literary Society was organized September 3, 1880, with 32 charter members. Its history down thru the years has been one of progress, but like the older sister societies, it has not been without the discouraging marks of adversity. Shakespeare however says:

"Sweet are the uses of adversity;
Which, like a toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel in his head."

As the motto of the society, "Ad astra per aspera," suggests, difficulties were expected; but the triumph over these obstacles has made the stars of her literary crown shine with unusual brilliancy.

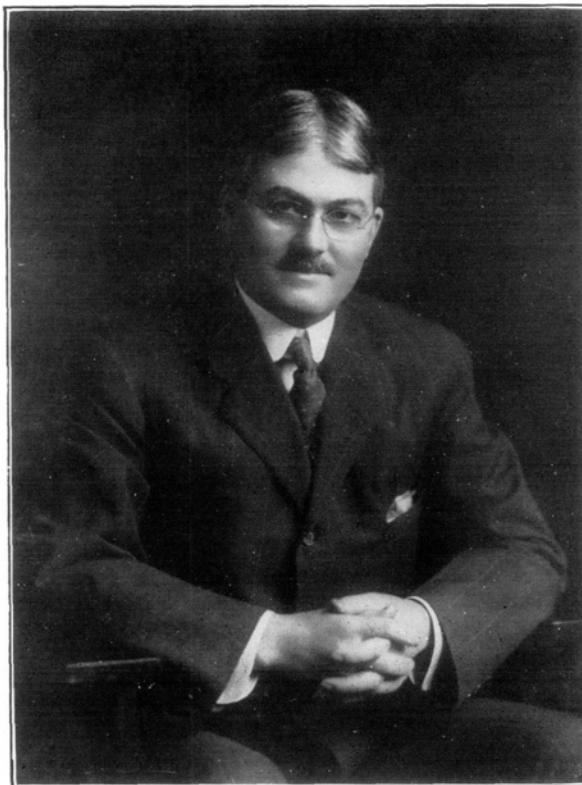

The highest aim or purpose of a society of this kind should be the development of the literary, moral and social culture of the individual. This has been the aim of the Adelphian Society and the success of that effort has been marvelous. Since the founding of the organization many hundreds have gone out from under its classic influence to take their places in the world. Those who put something into the society when they had the opportunity, took away from it that which has been of immeasurable value to them in dealing with the human equation. As it was then, so is it at the present time. Those who have been and are willing to use their talents for the good of themselves and the society, will reap the benefits, not in mere self aggrandizement, but in a broader conception of life in its relation to the social fabric.

A changed society spirit now pervades the atmosphere of college life. The old time way of soliciting is gone and the ranks are being filled thru volunteer recruits and personal solicitation. Just what the effect of this changed spirit will be on the future status of the society can only be a conjecture, for we are not advanced far enough from the time of change to see with prophetic eye what the future has in store. It is true, however, that we must be progressive in literary circles as well as in things political, so any change whatsoever, that makes for the progress of the society should be encouraged. One noteworthy feature that has been added during the past year is the granting of a diploma to those who have done a prescribed amount of literary work. This should be an incentive to greater attainments along these lines.

The work of the society in the past year has been of a high order and fully up to the standard of former years. Much of it has been original, a thing which the society has ever endeavored to keep in the fore-front. Generally the attendance has been very good, but it is a noticeable fact that the largest audiences are always present when there is a special program given chiefly for entertainment. There should be an appreciation for literary work rather than that of mere amusement. However, our faith in the old society will not permit us to take off our hats to the past, and in a pessimistic way speak of its possible deterioration. There are just as strong men and women at the helm as the past has produced, and just as skillful pilots will continue at the wheel to guide the Adelphian ship.

With the class of '13 will go many of its most active members, many who for the past three or four years have toiled and labored together. It is with a feeling of sadness that we sever our connections with the old society, perhaps never to meet again upon its stage in forensic battle, but to enter into life's great drama, there to act our parts, however insignificant they may be.

The associations formed thru the Society's influence have been the most pleasant and will ever remain our cherished memories. The ties of friendship have been drawn so closely by our work together that years cannot sever the bonds that bind us to each other. It is like unto the comradeship that makes the gloomy days of the sixties so dear to the Boys who wore the Blue. Then out of the heart's fullness of the beauties of friendship, let our voices exclaim, "Long may prosperity crown the efforts of the grand, old Society that has for its inspiring motto, 'Ad astra per aspera.' "

DR. G. W. CRILE

Dr. G. W. Crile, of Cleveland, Ohio, graduated from the Science Department of the Ohio Northern University in 1885 when the Adelphian Literary Society was in its infancy. Since that time he has won a national reputation in the field of Surgery. However, in the midst of a busy career he last year showed his loyalty to the old society by establishing an Annual Oratorical Prize of $25. This timely benefaction will not only add stars to his crown, but will increase the literary standard of the society and stimulate the greatest possible oratorical excellence. Long may the name of Dr. Crile be cherished in the hearts of the Adelphians.

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS

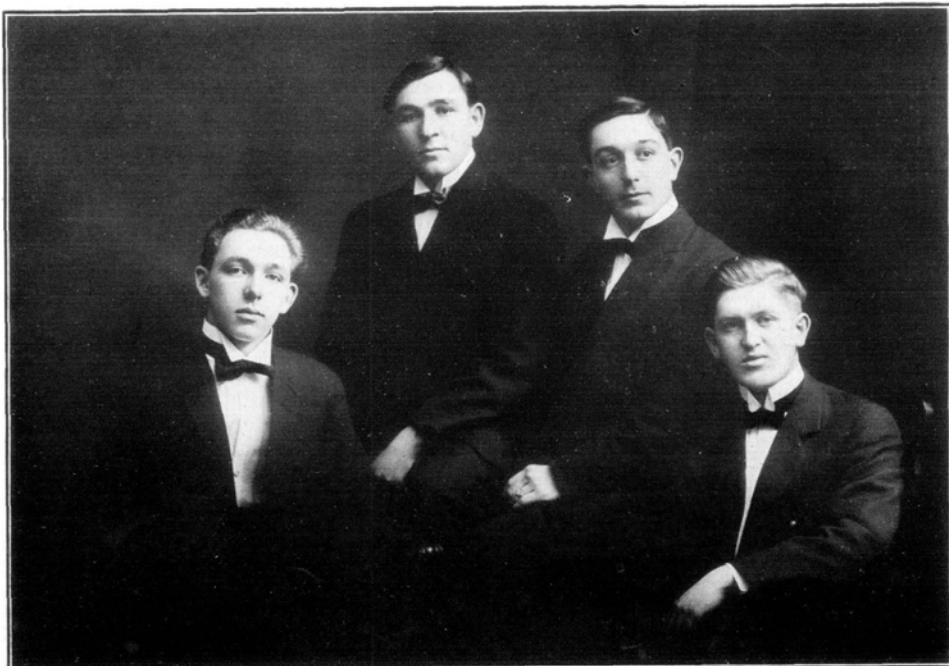

The most significant event in the history of the world is the appearance of a great man,—a "Forward-looking" man, a man who is keenly conscious of his nation's needs, and whose supreme desire is to promote the welfare of his fellow beings and to preserve his nation's honor. With understanding mind, he looks back thru the centuries of history and sees not only her worthy attainments, but her errors, her false conceptions and misleading standards. And like the prophet of old, he must tear down and root out in order that he may build the more securely for the future.

Such a man did Greece produce in Socrates, Rome in Caesar, England in Gladstone, America in Lincoln, and such a man has the great State of Ohio produced in the Hon. Frank B. Willis. As an educator and lecturer, he has attained a high rank; and in his elevation to Congress the Eighth Congressional District as well as the State of Ohio has given to the Nation a son of whom she may well be proud. Congressman Willis stands for progress, efficiency, practicability, and justice. His work is representative of the best type of constructive statesmanship and thru his unquestionable ability, untiring industry and unimpeachable integrity, he has won the esteem and confidence of his fellow-countrymen.

The Adelphian Society has nurtured many worthy sons of fame, but among her noble galaxy, of none does she feel more justly proud than her own Willis. In his high calling he has been an inspiration both to his Alma Mater and his society. For his genial personality, true sincerity and cheerful optimism, we love him. Then let us prophesy that when the history of the Twentieth Century is written and the role is made of those who are worthy of their country's honor the name of Frank Willis shall be among the foremost.

The Adelphian Basketball team of 1912-13 was again a great success, it having been so ably captained by C. A. Stump and coached by Harry Judson. The team won every game played, thereby winning the Inter-Society championship for the second successive year.

Many thought the Adelphians would have no chance to win in the series this year since Harry Hill and Harry Judson, two of our last year stars, were playing upon the O. N. U. team. Nevertheless we had in store a surprise for the other two societies. Every man upon the team was a star and deserves the commendation of the Society that they so nobly carried to victory. The one busy man connected with the Y. M. C. A. is Ralph Donnan, the General Secretary. He is an untiring worker, always ready and willing to help any student, who needs any aid he has it in his power to render. He is the most efficient General Secretary we have had for several years, and since Ralph will take up a different line of Y. M. C. A. work, we wish him the utmost success.

Y. M. C. A.

IN 1905, three vacant rooms in the basement of the Administration building were being used for refuse and an occasional drill room for Co. E. then in existence. At that time the Y. M. C. A. of the Ohio Northern University was a theoretical organization charging its members 25c per term for being on the honor roll. Secy. Weist, a few professors, and some men, now alumni, conceived the plan of installing a practical Y. M. C. A. in the above mentioned rooms. The present suite is the result of the healthy growth of this active organization. During the present year another room has been added and is used promiscuously for committee meetings, accommodation room for visiting athletic teams, and housing the popular A. R. Boys' Club.

Secy. Donnan is busy continually. An estimate of the amount of work under his guidance can be gained from a perusal of the Y. M. C. A.'s activities,—conducting the school employment bureau which aids scores of students in turning surplus time into needed funds; assisting students to rooming and boarding places; maintaining a school directory; and bringing the student body in touch with many noted speakers. Among these were Prof. Shannon who spoke in the interest of Social Purity; Ted Mercer, the best-liked heart-to-heart man that the students have heard; Detective Wiard, on present sociological problems; B. A. Gramm of Lima, on business ethics; and others. It was also under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. that we had the Coburn Shakespearean Players, the Famous Local Talent Minstrel, and the popular Summer School Lecture Course.

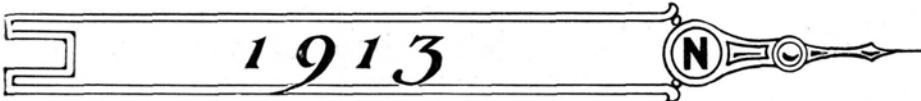

The various State Conventions have had Northern representatives.

Chairman Good organized successful classes in World's Problems, taught by Prof. Pond. This is a new work and has proven exceedingly profitable. Bible Study was put on a solid basis and is being carried on in connection with the local Sunday Schools.

The Friday evening meetings have been exceptionally well attended, the Association rooms always being crowded. Students and local men give the addresses, with opportunity for open discussion.

These activities with the various advantages offered the students, a reading room always open, make the Y. M. C. A., guided by the efficient Secretary, one of the most useful organizations in the school, and a worthy member of the college associations.

The organization was fortunate this year in having for its President that good all around enthusiastic worker, C. T. Conklin, to lead in the work of the Y. M. C. A. He is a prince of good fellows, and we will miss him, whenever he leaves Ohio Northern.

N

Y. W. C. A.

NOTHER year has been added to the history of the Young Women's Christian Association. In its effort to conserve the highest Christian ideals among the girls of the college, it found the field of service ever enlarging.

Realizing the importance of such an organization, the cabinet of 1912-13 began its work with two definite ends in view: first, that of making each girl feel a part of the universal student Movement that is transforming the college world religiously; and, second, that of accepting Christ's teaching and comradeship in making the world a kingdom of love and justice.

That the first end was accomplished to a marked degree is shown in the fact that two girls attended the Summer Conference at Eagle's Mere, Pa., two were delegates to the Christian Leader Conference at Otterbein University, and ten girls studied the origin and development of the Association Movement. New ideals and inspirations gave a broader conception of the work and a splendid spirit of co-operation resulted.

The steps toward the realization of the second aim were made in the Bible and Missionary classes, the interest in the weekly meetings and the various lines of service. Two Bible classes in "The Social and Ethical Teachings of Jesus" were maintained in the Sunday Schools, a class in Ephesians was held by the Association alone, and many of the girls were in the curriculum classes. The Missionary department conducted classes in "China's New Day," "A History of the Young Women's Christian Association Movement," and "The Challenge of the Country." The department also showed a decided increase in the amount of money raised by systematic giving. The girls supported an orphan girl and contributed to the support of a secretary in India, sent clothing and toys to poor children, met trains and assisted new girls, and in numberless ways showed a spirit of love and helpfulness.

What the influence of such training will be no one can estimate! It is only hoped that the Christ-like spirit will so continue to pervade the Association that no girl will come to Ohio Northern without feeling its influence. The social standards are to be raised yet higher; the class room honor should become unimpeachable—many things are to be done. But with an efficient cabinet under the leadership of Miss Gottschall, the new year promises to be one of the great enthusiasm with a fuller realization of "Whosoever would be first among you, should be servant of all."

Miss Elizabeth Burkholder has been an ideal President, and it is very largely through her efficient work, that the Young Women's Christian Association has made such a good record the past year at Ohio Northern.

INTER-COLLEGiate SOCIALIST STUDY CLUB

The Inter-collegiate Socialist Study Club of the Ohio Northern University was organized in March 1912.

At first the membership was very light, but has grown steadily until it now numbers twenty-one ardent members.

The rapid rise and growth of Socialism over the civilized world, and its claims and criticisms almost compel every thinking man and woman to give it more or less attention. No man today entertains the idea that, "This is no new thing under the sun," but to the contrary has studied society in its infancy, in its more natural form and from such investigations realizes that society is, has been, and no doubt always will be in a state of evolution.

To intelligently and honestly interpret social conditions, past and present, is the aim of this social organization. Every student is invited to give Socialism a thorough investigation, then do all in his power, either to forward or retard its progress.

To show the interest taken in this organization, it might be mentioned that over sixty universities of America, including Harvard and Yale, have such clubs at the present time.

The Cosmopolitan Club

As a means of promoting better understanding between students of America and foreign countries, and of bringing future leaders of the world's activities into closer contact with each other, a Cosmopolitan Club at the Ohio Northern University has been organized.

This movement started about four years ago and represents the most advanced and energetic organization of the foreign students, and at the same time neutral ground for the corporate student.

One of its principles is to promote mutual understanding with warmest intercourse between each nationality of the world. Our motto is "World wide brotherhood."

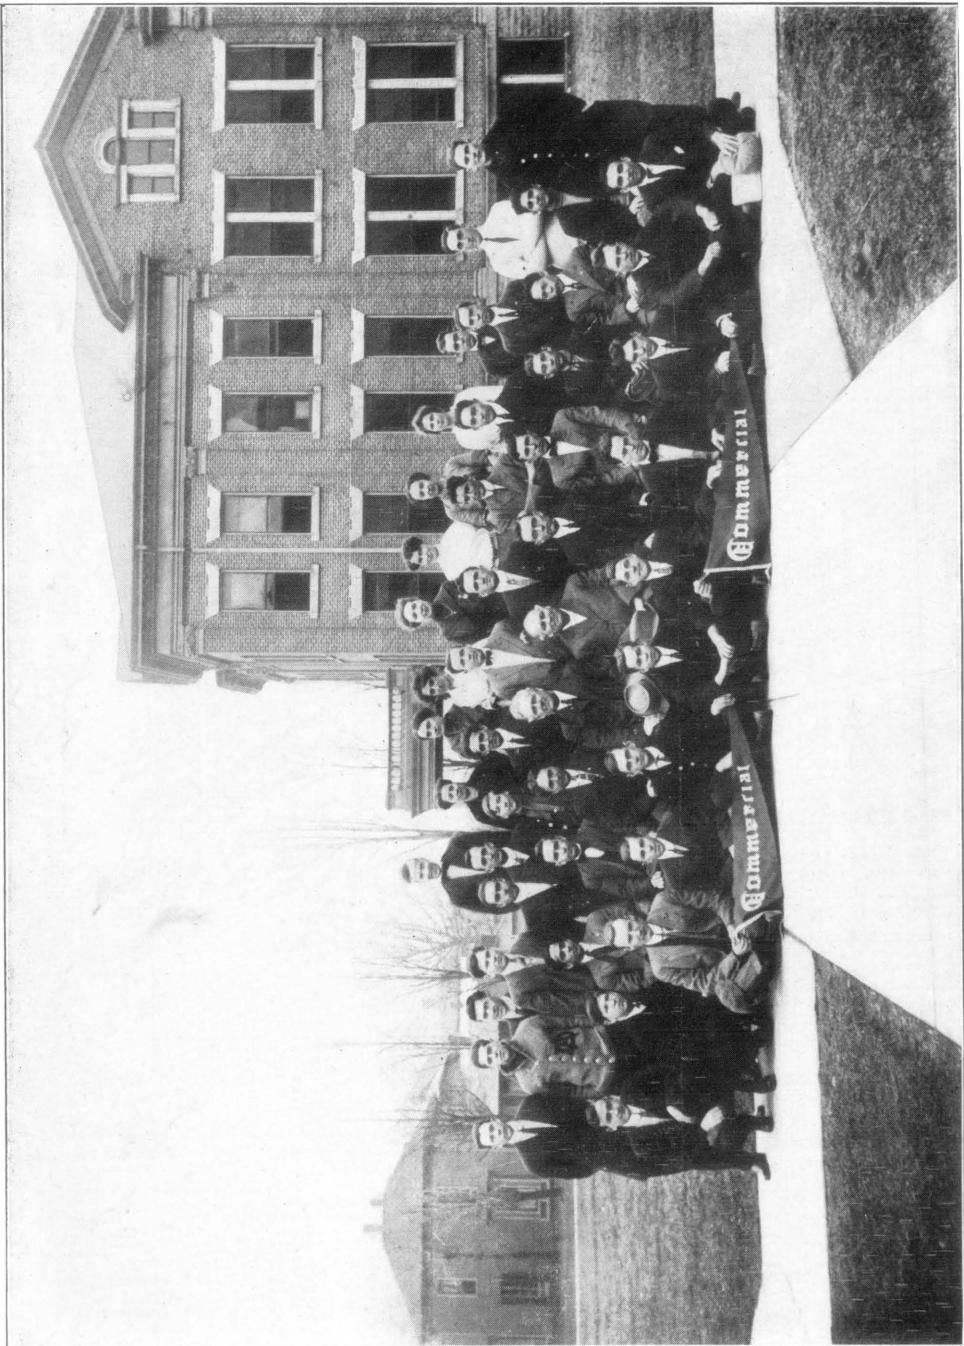

Officers of the club are: President, Henry M. Kaplan; Vice President, Alfredo Mendez; Secretary, J. R. Garcia; Corresponding Secretary, G. S. Knott; Treasurer, A. J. Bertach. The following are the nationalities represented: United States 7, Porto Rico 7, Russia 5, Brazil 3, Cuba 2, Germany 2, Japan 2, Austria 1, China 1, Mexico 1.

Thomas J. Smull, Father of O.N.U. Athletics

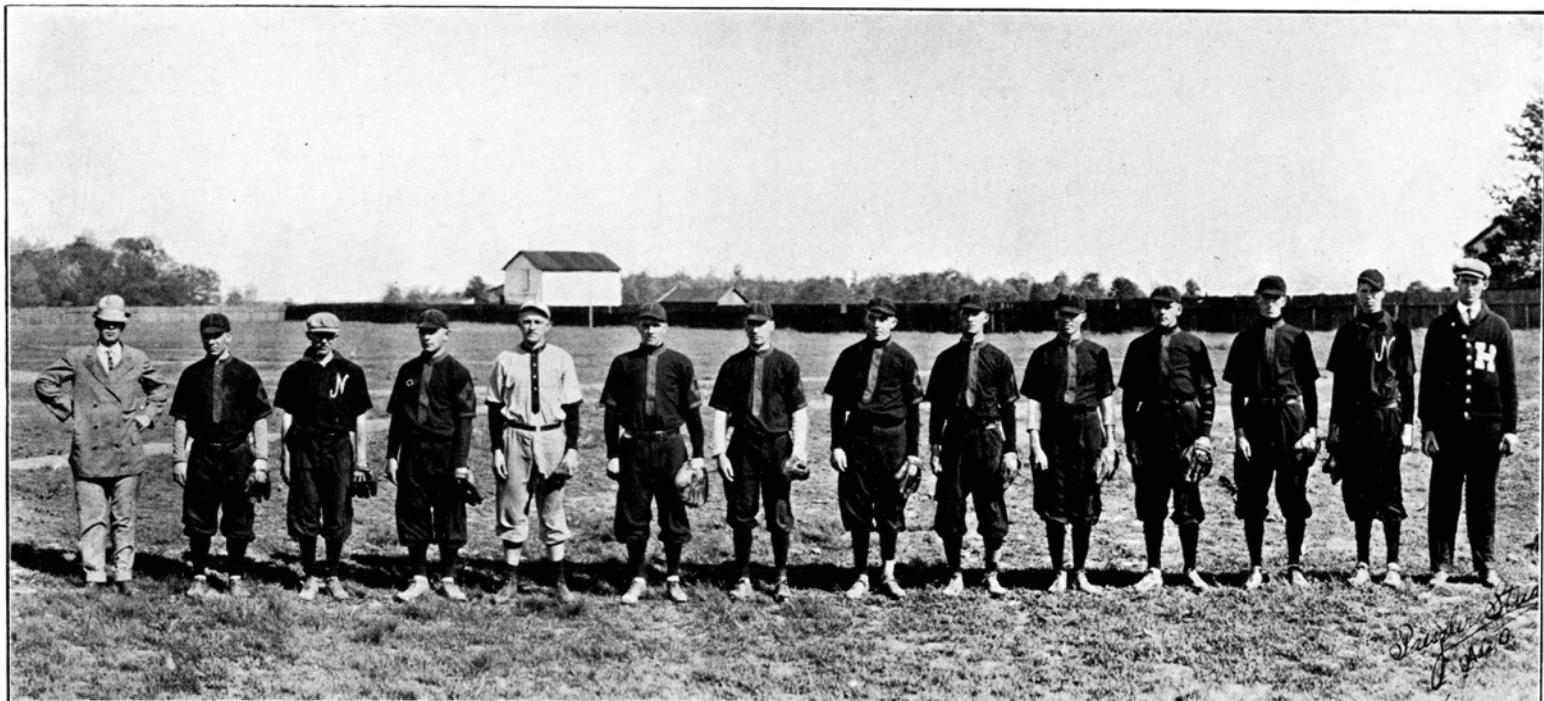

DEAN SMULL, of the Engineering College, popularly known in our athletic circles as "Tommy," became permanently located here after a rather checkered career. During the seasons of 1897 and 1898 he caught for the Central State Normal team at Lock Haven, Pa. In 1900 he entered Susquehanna University at Schirsgrove, Pa., and there played in the same position. In 1901 he coached this team though still the regular catcher. In the winter of 1901 he entered O. N. U. The following year his record here was brilliant both in base ball and foot ball. In the spring of 1903 he was captain of base ball and in the fall of the same year, captain of foot ball. In 1904 he played 5 games with U of M's eleven but finished the season with Fayette College, Easton, Pa., because more satisfactory college credits were offered at this place. From 1905 to 1908, while a member of the faculty, Northern's athletics were under his sole direction. In 1908, at Dean Smull's recommendation, the O. N. U. Athletic Board was organized. He was Chairman of this body for five consecutive years, when at his own request he was relieved of the chairmanship. The need of his influence and wise counsel being felt, he was made Honorary President and Adviser. From the beginning Dean Smull's one ambition was to obtain recognition for O. N. U. athletics at the hands of the large schools. He argued that proper home support was the first essential to such a condition. To obtain this he began by abolishing the unsatisfactory system of raising money by subscriptions among business men. He then initiated a policy of paying all debts at the close of each year, though to maintain this he was often compelled to secure notes with his own signature at local banks.

To strengthen his position with the students he provided for student representation on the Athletic Board. With these reforms enacted and an established record for clean athletics, success was certain. For complete assurance one needs only to compare the schedules of the present and to remember that for the past four years Dean Smull has been on the endorsed list of football officials.

Dean Smull's efforts endure in the hearts of all who are familiar with O. N. U. history and by them he will always be regarded as Father and Founder of athletics at Northern.

Baseball 1912

NORTHERN'S baseball team of 1912 was a marvel when one stops to consider the fact that "Pinkey" Spruhan was the only player left from the team of the previous season.

Too much credit cannot be given to Coach Bradshaw for the work he did in building up one of the finest teams in the history of the institution. Manager Sleesman arranged an excellent schedule of a dozen games, two of which were practice games with Saginaw, and a third was with the Alumni after the regular season had closed and most of the N men had gone home. Besides the three games just mentioned, Northern suffered only one other defeat and that was with the fast and heavy hitting nine sent out by the University of West Virginia. Much to the pleasure of the Ada fans, the entire schedule was made up of home games.

Mehler worked behind the bat with all the "Pep" that it would seem could not be put in a man twice his size. He had a comment for the good qualities of every play made by the Northern men. He will take his place in the annals as one of Northern's best catchers.

Callander worked very efficiently on the mound. He was always cool although the steam he put into his delivery would even make the fans on the bleachers dream of accident policies and the countries beyond.

In the last two games, Mills pitched with credit to himself and to the team. Experience is all that is necessary to make him a star in Northern's baseball firmament.

Fairless held down first base in a most excellent fashion and kept the runners on their toes at all times. As to the extent of his other abilities, suffice to say that the team elected him Captain for 1913.

"Skeeter" Hill began the season at first, but received an injury in the second game which kept him on the bench until the second to the last game, when he appeared to good advantage in the outfield.

With credit to himself and to the team, Spruhan held down second base for a second season.

Captain Malloy played a most excellent game in the windy corner, and no one could ever figure just how many plays were started at third base.

Stump was brought to short from an outfield position. Here he handled the mean and easy ones with but few errors.

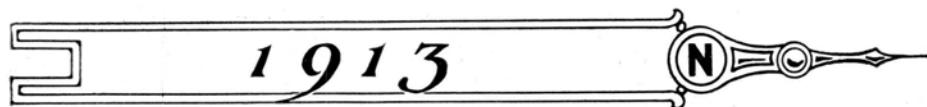

Park played right field and excelled in the slugging department.

Young, formerly a catcher, broke into an outfield position in mid-season, owing to the excellent manner in which he could send the pill on a joy ride when the bases were full.

Carlyle was a capable fielder and a good sticker.

Montgomery and Boyle, as substitute infielder and outfielder respectively, always made good when the opportunity presented itself.

The Athletic Board placed further confidence in Captain Fairless when they voted him the coach's position for 1913.

NORTHERN

Football 1912

HE call for football candidates early in September, by Captain Brown, was answered by a squad of about forty men. Of this number the following were N men of the team of the previous season: D. E. Gardner, E. S. Haight, H. W. Wilson, L. Grisbaum, C. A. Stump, Captain C. A. Brown, and C. R. Peters. These seven men started at once to prove to Coach Bradshaw that he need only pick four men from the new candidates.

During the season, various new innovations, such as the transferring of the game with Heidelberg, to Lima, the better handling of the players after practice, had a tendency to keep the football spirit at fever heat.

Only two games were played at Ada, but the playing in these games alone was positive proof of the careful and painstaking work of Coach Bradshaw. With such a large field to pick from, his was no small problem.

For the first game of the season, Northern made a creditable showing against the University of Pittsburg. But at Buchtel she met with a defeat. The damage was done during the first quarter which closed with the score, Buchtel, 21, 0. N. U. 0. During the next three quarters, however, Northern scored 13 points as against 6 for Buchtel. The next three games were victories for Northern, the surprise coming at Adrian, which boasts of a team that is strong and mighty, where the Varsity triumphed, the score being 27-0.

The game at Lima between Heidelberg and Northern called for a special train from Ada. A long and well-executed snake dance by 700 Northern students, the O.N.U. Band, and numerous yells and songs instilled much enthusiasm into the Limaites. Our eleven, in a most interesting game, completely overran Heidelberg.

The game at Hiram was lost through most unusually poor playing on a muddy field.

Mt. Union, after some persuasion, arrived at Ada sure that they who had defeated all the big Ohio Colleges, were going to win at least a 50-0 game from Northern. But on that day Northern rose up in all her glory and vanquished that mighty eleven against odds. The whole school was out on Alumni Field, yes, even to the long pent-up goar that shied at the blare of the trumpets. Every man on the team played excellent ball and the victory was ours.

Culver vanquished our warriors who still suffered from the effects of the crowning victory over Mt. Union.

Wilson "Duce" made a name for himself at center with his accurate passing, and his all around steady work.

Thomas, like all men who accomplished things, played his tackle position for all there was in it and was especially good on defense.

Haight, "Stickey Finger," played tackle every minute of the game with a tenacity backed by a marvelous use of strength.

"Red" Grisbaum, with his "Pep Boys," held an end position, and featured at Hiram, and especially in the game with Mt. Union.

Stump was the brains of the team. He played at quarter-back through every game. He featured in goal kicking, thereby winning the Mt. Union game after kicking a goal from a most difficult angle.

Babe Adams played half, and for his first year in football, did remarkably well, and bids fair to travel some next year. For a man of his weight, he was exceptionally speedy.

L. B. Smith played a consistent game at half back.

R. S. Smith was the utility man of the team although his true weight would lead one to believe he was not in the squad. Half or quarter, end or tackle, it was all the same to Smith.

Captain Brown made a most able leader and held his half back position with credit. In the last game he received a slight concussion of the brain, which caused his withdrawal from school.

Etherton, "Fussy," was a hawk when it came to getting into the air after a forward pass.'

F. B. Adams played a steady game at tackle.

Hobson started the season and was not daunted when his avoirdupois prevented his developing the required speed.

Bob Poole was the steadiest lineman and never came out of a scrimmage but that he showed the marks of it.

Gardner, star end of the previous season, played two games. He then left to play with the University of Mississippi.

Carl Peters (Coach elect) was the biggest man, also biggest ground-gainer on the team. Every man looked alike to Pete; he hit them all hard and with the desired effect. Carl played in every game.

At the close of the season, the fourteen letter men elected Claire A. Stump as Captain for 1913.

Second Football Team

THE second team, in a very large measure, is responsible for the successful season experienced by the Varsity team. Day after day they appeared on alumni field and let the first string men throw their entire strength against their line. They never knew what applause meant but they did know what was necessary to develop a capable first team, namely, a dogged never-give-up defense, and they delivered the goods along this line even to the chargin of the Varsity.

The laurels of winning the Mt. Union game is, in a large measure, partly theirs for they lined up against the first team for three weeks without any intervening games and showed up the weak spots in the makeup of Northern's finest eleven.

The following men, true lovers of sport, whose work compels the appreciation of every student, received the official O. N. U. monogram for their excellent work: Evans, Dustman, Strong, Davis, Alcroft, Strawn, Neiswander, Powell, Morgan, Parsons, Downing, Steiner, Foley, Metzger, Cook, H. Judson, Heminger, Fleming, Fencter, Long, McGannon, Patterson, Capt. W. R. Cargo, and Mgr. G. Young.

Track Athletics

OR the reason that Ohio Northern has neither a track nor a gymnasium, the training of men for this most diversified branch of all athletics, there is very little, if any, opportunity to develop even the likeness of a track team. With these conditions prevailing, it is remarkable to see the number of men who are willing to keep the sport alive even at the risk of bodily injury to themselves.

Capt. E. H. Babcock, a most capable leader and coach of experience, was pleased when twenty-five men responded to his call for track candidates. The athletic field was put in fair condition for field events, and portions of a track plowed, when word was received from Columbus, that Northern would not be permitted to compete in the Big Six meet in the future owing to the new ruling that only Conference teams would be permitted to enter. After that event, the track squad diminished until only 3 or 4 faithful followers of the sport appeared on Alumni Field.

Notre Dame challenged us for an indoor duel meet, but under existing conditions the challenge had to be rejected. There has been no cross-country runs this year, and no track candidates for spring work.

May 21, '12 was Junior-Senior day for the 1913-12 classes and the Juniors proved conclusively by a 55-25 score that they excelled in track work. Babcock, of the Junior class, gave several fine exhibitions of the art, especially in the discuss event, when he broke the old record of 82 ft. 8 inches, thereby establishing 97 ft. 7 inches as the new record. He ended the day with the individual honors, having made 31 of his team's 55 points.

The Inter-Society Meet held Monday, June 3, developed a new star in the firmament of track athletics when P. Herber, running for the Adelphians, took individual honors with 29 points. The societies finished as follows: Adelphians, 60; Philos, 54, and Franklins 26.

Capt. Babcock and Mgr. Powell received official old English N's for their labors, while Shively, Peters, T. W. Reilly, R. Williams, McDaniels, McCartney, and Thompson were granted O. N. U. monograms, for their endeavor to keep track athletics alive at Northern.

The monogram men elected E. J. McDaniels, Captain for the 1912-13 season.

Basketball

At the very beginning of the basket ball season, with an excellent quality of material from which to select a winning team, the members of the Athletic Board could see no means by which Northern could be represented in the great indoor game. The management of the Armory would not allow it to be used by the university for home games nor could Brown Auditorium be secured. Finally the following motion was passed unanimously by the Board:—That the Student Basket Ball organization be granted the privilege of using the name of the institution until such time as, in the opinion of the Board, the privilege is being abused, and without any financial obligation on the part of the Board.

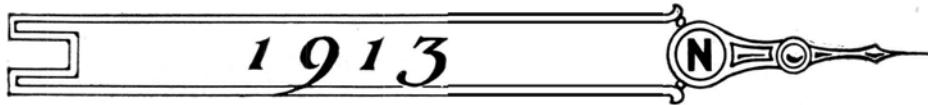

An excellent schedule was soon arranged and new equipment procured. Then the trouble began because five of the regular players were also members of Co. G team; the two schedules conflicted and the men played with Co. G. because they were paid for their services. Because of this some of the best games, those with Notre Dame and Michigan Aggies, had to be cancelled.

The character of the team was too great for what might be called a "Tramp Team" as the quintet never appeared together on any home floor. Capt. George Young left and joined the New York National Basket Ball Five and by the time the vacancy was filled, the season was so far advanced that only three games were played. The season was finished with a deficit of ten dollars.

NORTHERN

DREAMS OF SOCIALISM

Dinger and Carruthers

SOUNDS AT SIGHT OS GILBERT STREET

Geographical Study of Ohio Northern

OHIO Northern is bounded on the north by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the chief line of importation and exportation of Dr. Smith's scholars, Prof. Kreglow's mule-foot hogs and other articles of an abnormal nature; on the east, by the Athletic field, where Coach Bradshaw's squad of "rooters" of the turf do all in their power to cause the "rooters" of the bleachers to root, root all the time; on the south by the Cemetery, where many a midnight scene has occurred, of which little is known to the people of this vicinity; on the west by the University farm, where our President retreats when the storms of mental strain prevail upon him to the extent that he must of necessity temporarily exile himself; where, also, every summer Prof. Richey and his noble band of co-laborers march boldly forth in search, not of the Holy Sepulchre as did the Crusaders of old, but to discover, if possible, some new way to raise a yellower pumkin, a greener gourd, a redder radish, or a whiter onion.

The population of Ohio Northern is unusually large at all times, and it is so great at times that even Secretary Donnan is compelled to make a directory of all the inhabitants, which generally specifies the name in full or in part, the living apartments, permanent or temporary, the recitation periods, true or false, the fraternity, and much other information, legal or illegal. The population in the summer is somewhat different than that of the fall and winter seasons, for then hundreds of peculiar specimens of humanity roam in herds 'round about the Normal Building, the Stewart House and the University farm. The care of these worthy creatures is surely a difficult task, and is looked after mainly by such places as the Estill House, and many similar institutions, where, a young man is extremely fortunate if it falls to his lot, to sit beside one of them.

Other occupations at Northern are rag-chewing, bluffing the Profs. and skipping chapel.

The Industrial sections are confined chiefly to the library, the Penn. depot, the Quinmont Inn, and the pool room over the post office.

The principal imports of Ohio Northern are raw materials and the chief exports are proficient pedagogues, "punk" preachers, pert pill rollers, plugging pile-drivers, pale parliamentarians, painstaking pen-pushers, and pretty painters. Other exports are poker players (when detected), pajama-paraders and professional plotters against Prexy. The place of exportation is Home, Sweet Home.

The capital of Ohio Northern is the Administration Building. To the left of the rotunda is the office of the President, from which many solemn, sacred decrees are issued. To the right is the rendezvous for all faculty meetings, where many extremely vital and most sagacious topics of the day and night are argued. Above the rotunda is the office of the Secretary, where a gentleman with magnificent appearance and with a good nature is always lurking about.

Other places of interest are Dolings, Quinmont Inn, especially a few minutes after society or a lecture; the society halls, especially while the ushers are seating the late arrivals; the university office, on registration day; the depot at the close of every term and the southwest corner of Brown Auditorium every morning at eight.

The Government of Ohio Northern is an Absolute Monarchy, the power being vested in King Albert Edwin and his chief adviser, Prince Henry. The laws of the realm are exceedingly strict and generally (?) enforced.

Gleanings from Sociology II

Miss Sinkey declares that early home training of girls makes them skillful in domestic duties
—Wonder if Miss S. speaks from experience?

Miss Joseph says that Domestic Science means more than sweeping, washing dishes and mending

Hon. John A. Neitz explains clearly why so many "hunkies" come to our shores every year.

The members of the Sociology Class evidently have their fill of the backwoods, for only four are going to return to the place whence they came. Conklin is responsible for this information.

Kalenien and Zulauf debate Socialism for an hour after Sociology Class is dismissed.

Good in Sociology Class explains how and why a mother-in-law is often to blame in many divorce cases.

Conklin tells how the farmer boy goes to the bad when he leaves the farm and goes to the city. Wonder why he didn't say something about that chicken he exhibited at the minstrel show?

Kalenien and Zulauf have debate on Socialism on campus near flag-pole.

Manahan tells how to get rich quick by feeding lambs on ensilage.

Straun is scared so bad while making his report that he continually removes the perspiration from his face. Good goes to sleep while Straun reports.

Steen wants 8 hours a day, according to the principles of Socialism, to go and see the girls.

Rev. Wm. George reads a very eloquent paper on Commission Government in a very eloquent way (?)

Kalenien sends more "hot shots" at Steen's Socialism.

Way digs down deep into the issues of Socialism to discover its faults. His conclusion is still in doubt.

Miss Haney doubts whether or not man has, as yet, reached the last stage in the development of the species.

Conklin flails the social centers in our country—he says a $3000 farmer can't get much religion from a $500 preacher.

Kirts, by means of prolonged research and complex diagrams, proves conclusively that the world is growing better.

Prof. Dice in explaining the social condition of woman in early times as compared with her condition today, says: "She is now free and no longer needs to dress and make herself attractive to man in order to win him." We wonder if he speaks from experience.

Doman explains the nature of an ideal minimum wage law; he laughed the maximum of his mouth when he was tickled.

Combs says that a machine knows no such thing as idleness. We think he meant the "Northern Board."

Steen:—Rome! Greece!! Slavery, feudalism!! capitalism!! Charlemagne!! Wealth!!! "the people"!! Socialism!!!!

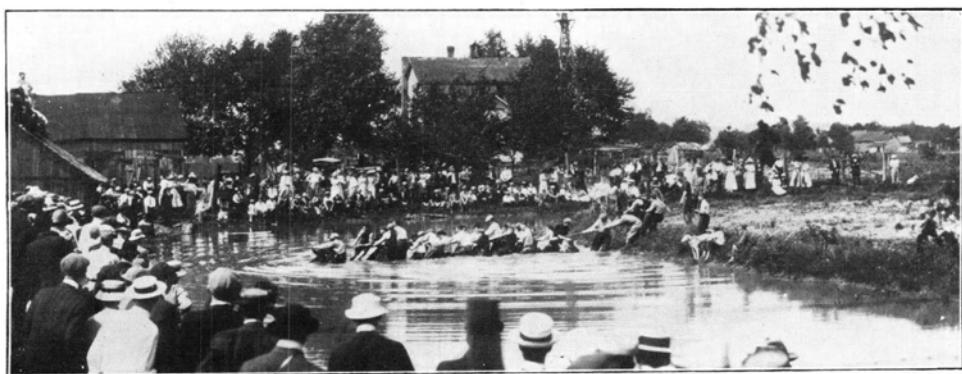

Shied says that man used to live like the gorilla and chimpanze.

THE HATCHET ANNIVERSARY

TUG-OF-WAR, 1912

Chapel at Ohio Northern

OR many days and months, yes even years, have the students at Northern been required to rise up and go forth to Chapel at an early hour. What a wonderful spectacle it is, what interesting things are said, and what an atmosphere ? it possesses.

At five minutes before eight o'clock the great bell in Normal's tower tells us to hurry toward Brown. We go, we enter, sometimes at the front door, and again at the south-west door. We are seated in our assigned quarters. Then, we hear the inspiring music from the great pipe-organ, while the Northern men and her co-eds slowly seek their places. When we look up into the gallery we see everybody looking down upon us. There are always two people in the gallery who invariably look upon the seats, if we are not there for them to look upon,—how queer that is—and as sure as we are not there they think so much of us that they even take the trouble to write it down.

Then a great volume of latent lung-capacity bursts forth and the result is like unto the roar of distant thunder. What does it all mean? Simply this—that all the students have opened their mouths simultaneously. Well, that's queer also—why did they do that anyway? Because one good-natured fellow up in front, with outstretched hands, smiled upon the whole crowd.

After the roar has ceased, the students let fall the seats with enough noise to grate on one's nerves, and then the big show is ready to begin. A fine-looking gentleman near the front of the platform rises, quickly changes his glasses and begins at once to read the most cut up, conglomerated, congested, collection of curios, that one ever heard in all his life. At times, he is interrupted, because some other good or bad looking fellow over in the south-west corner gets up to say something himself. When the good-looking gentleman's supply of material is exhausted, another very prominent gentleman at his left generally has something to say. He speaks as one having authority. When he has finished, there is usually great suspense, then an outburst of applause, for he has made a talk, not so mixed up as the speech of the gentleman who preceded him, and with much better connection. He concludes his speech and with a gentle nod of the head we are dismissed. We file slowly from the hall and take up our respective tasks for the day.

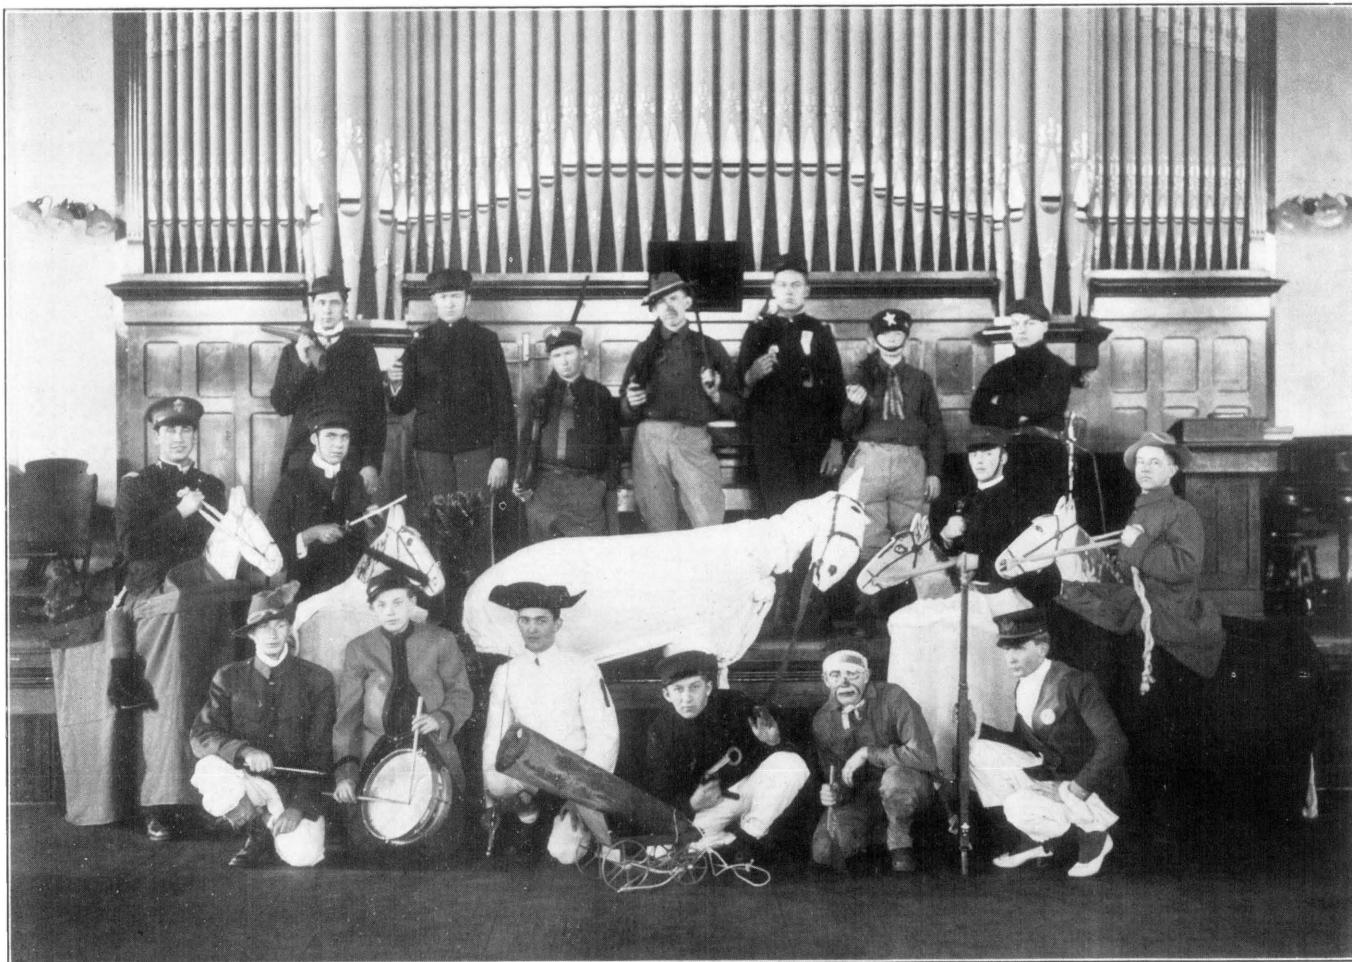

AFTER CHAPEL

Northernites Smite the Mt. Unionites

Ramoth-Gilead furnishes account of great battle.

1. And it came to pass in the eighth year of the reign of Prexy, ruler of Northern, that there were gathered unto him a mighty host which did valiantly play upon the football.
2. And they waxed strong and did battle with the mighty men of other schools and did vanquish them, yea, even to a shut-out.
3. Now there arose at Alliance a host of the Mt. Unionites who were fair and goodly to look upon; upon whose tablets of stone was inscribed only one defeat in many battles.
4. And the Mt. Unionites said unto themselves, let us go unto the Adaites who boasteth of strength and valor, for they are a cinch unto our swift warriors, thus shall we raise a mighty percentage which shall appear to advantage in the Sabbath editions.
5. Now when the days were accomplished they came unto Northern and were greeted with a mighty host of crying and singing aloud.
6. And there arose in their midst Conklin-Pete-Allen, cheer-leader of the host of Northern and he marched before all the people leading an he-goat.
7. With an inscription upon its loins, "Mt. Union," which is to say, "We have thy he-goat. He is ours even to the going down of the sun."
8. Now when they had come unto the field of battle, which is called Alumni to this day, they did face each other at a distance of 50 paces.
9. Thereupon the trumpet of the referee did sound and they did rush upon each other as wild beasts in their fury.
10. And the Northernites did smite the Mt. Unionites sorely, even unto a man.
11. Now it came to pass in the second scrimmage of the first quarter of the second half that Grisbaum, son of Grisbaum the Elder, did rise in his might and flee through the lines of the Mt. Unionites.
12. So likewise did Etherton and Peters and Stump and Adams and Brown and all those playing upon the line, yea, even unto the eleventh man upon the team did they break through the line.
13. And the number of the touchdowns was three and of the goals there were three, so that the Mt. Unionites were sore afflicted in their heart and would have cried for mercy, for they were vanquished even by one point.
14. And straightway the cheer leader didst gather his hosts about him and they went up unto the Tabernacle and they did make merry even unto the tenth hour.
15. And the he-goat went before them bearing the inscription, "Mt. Union," which meaneth "We have thy he-goat, yea, he is ours even until another game."

An Hour in Room 37D

HE watchers at the window announced the coming of the Big Chief, and immediately the battle of erasers ceased, while Roughneck Haight takes one last swing at Zu, and the Brunswick Quartette sadly sings the last verse of "We may stall Him now and then but He'll get us in the End."

Enter, the big Chief briskly, calls the roll and opens Merriman's "Latest Tortures for the Feeble Minded," at the same time casting an approving eye over the assembled Would-Be's, who are now trying to dope out where Mansfield got that $2x^2Y - 3-2$ arc sin. O when it looks as though xyz to the umptey steen power would do just as well.

"Smith, can you derive that formula?" on Page 23 today.

"Nothing doing," answers Lew.

"Whats a matter?" asks the Big Chief.

"I guess the White Lights of our cities are keeping you from your studies."

"Guinan, can you do it?"

"No, Chief, I can't, but I can do the Grizzly."

"Then Rosy chirps in with that sweet refrain; "I'll do that Little Thing for You," and marches triumphantly to the board, amid the sighs of relief of those who did not quite get that arc sin O.

"Say, Chief," breaks in Tommy Hampton, "I don't quite understand how you can tell whether there is compression or tension in these web members." Whereupon the Big Chief seats himself, gets his feet up on the desk, spits on Custodian Coolidge's floor, and proceeds to make a few poor Panel Loads do more different kinds Turkey Trots and Gaby Glides than the stage manager of a burlesque show could ever think of, finally ending his oration by drawing a simile between a vertical member and a girl sitting on her beau's lap, from which Penny immediately concludes that the stress must be compression.

"The enthralled silence is finally broken by "Kap" who says:

"How do you get the loads there in the first place?"

A look of pain steals o'er the Chief's noble countenance, but as he is about to explain, the merciful hand of Hiram intervenes and immediately arising, he mumbles, "Come back tomorrow at the same time," and retired to his private tepee sadly humming, "I was all-right in my Younger Days, but I'm all in Now!"

seek information what are basket ball. Please reply me at oncely. I am very inquirious why for they call him basket ball.

I extort myself $\frac{1}{4}$ \$ for entrance for armory. I see one gentleman lift ball very much high and Hon. Cap. Geo. Young and gentleman make jump for him. Right away they push ball with hand away. I don't obtain comprehend why cute little fellow fight for ball then throw him away. What is the mat? Is it not the correctly one? Why does every man fight so vengously for ball what they don't want? Anyhow I can buy one just the same like him for one dollar 65 cent.

By and by I see one man in basket the ball place. Right away it fall through hole in bottom and everybody become angrious and growl "raw raw" because there is hole in basket. Somemore everybody fight and fall down and one man put ball in different basket, but just the same there is hole in bottom and him fall down. I enjoy disappointment for I see no completeness of your sport. Why does somebody not repair—what you call her receptacle for that ball.

By and by I hear Mr. John Shirley exclaim much vehemently "Cover up." Why for, eh? I supposition because ladies in congregation yes. Anyhow I see no shock of the modesty because every man does not play in the sleeve of the shirt. Anyhow it is too warm and nobody cover up.

Hon. Ed in your next every once a yearly book please explanate why are basketball. I hear Mr. Tommy Smull relate in class of the material of the manchanic "Basketball is fight raised to the fifth power". Maybe yes, maybe no. I don't know.

Genus, Homo, Species Theologicus

HIS is a rare specimen. It does not thrive well in cold atmosphere. The Theologici appear in numerous forms, short, long, lean, fat, some have bushy hair while others lack it altogether. They generally stalk abroad covered with sable garments, and seem to love darkness rather than light. A few specimens have a vegetative appearance. Children fear them because they look vicious, but women have been known to handle the largest ones with ease.

The digestive apparatus is especially adapted to certain foods. The esophagus readily receives spring chicken, of which it never tires. A few have been known to develop pin feathers because of the large consumption of the barnyard fowl.

Some approach human intelligence, but they are never aware of it. Scientists, however, have never been able to discover a large mentality and in all probability never will. Most of them have a sonorous sound box situated about two inches S. W. of the lower extremity of the face. Horrible sounds pour forth from this box and frighten children and animals, but seem to hold grown-ups spellbound. Few people really understand what they utter yet they attract some attention. The noises come forth best in buildings where the specimen is elevated far above the heads of the common heard of earth beings. Some get the outcries by means of a bellows propelled by the diaphragm, while others by waving the front feet in the air and jumping about on the hind ones.

Opinions differ as to the value of the animal. Keepers of museums say that if it is exhibited it will attract the attention of girls. Authorities, however, say that it ought to be done away with if the human race is to be saved.

The species is found in many places, chiefly curled up in an easy chair. Europe and North America is especially burdened with the parasite. A large number rove up and down the banks of the Swinona River near Ada. The celestial appearance of the look side of the head gives evidence that the specimen fell from Mars or some other planet. It is difficult to say what the future of the animal will be. Most people think that the species is becoming extinct.

Their habits are very peculiar. Often they are seen in the classrooms of the O. N. U. where they get their brains indented with words which Charlie Dice lets loose. After they have become well indented they stealthily leave town and seek church-houses in which they proceed to hand out the chin goods. Then they come back for a fresh supply. More anon.

—Higbie — Darned if I'm "Stout" enough to walk to town and back every night.

HE morning had arrived for our departure to camp. The battalion had fallen into line and were resting in their places. Looking down the street we were surprised to see an old colored gentleman coming toward us leading a fine specimen of the "half century" mule. Major Simpson being anxious to start asked the old gentleman if he and Sampson would kindly move to one side.

"Look heah, you officer man, dat mule's name am not Sam's son.."

"Well, I beg your pardon," replied the major, "what do you call him?"

"Dat niale's name am "Corporation," sah!"

"Corporation," replied the major in astonishment. "Why do you call him that?"

"Cause, sah, dat mule gets more abuse and den goes on habin' his own way about everything dan anything else in de world."

There was a general laugh at the expense of the major.

"Well, will you please step aside so we can pass?" said Simpson angrily.

"No, sah! I had my orders to come heah dis mawnin'. Am dis Co. A?"

"No, sir, the third company commanded by Capt. Wangenheim."

"Thanks, sah!"

The old fellow moved down the line and accosted Capt. Wangenheim. The following conversation ensued:

"Good mawnin'. Am you Capt. Wangenheim?"

"Yes, sir, uncle. What can I do for you?"

"Am Lieut. Higbie in you company?"

"Yes, sir."

"Dis mule am fur him. He done bot dis mule yesterday for the Commissary Department of Company A."

Capt. Wangenheim turned to Higbie with a frown and asked:

"This your mule, Lieut?"

"Yes, sir, it is."

"Well, what in the duce do you want with him?"

"Now, look here, Captain. It's seven or eight miles out to that camp and you needn't think I am going to walk those fourteen miles every night. No, sir-ee. I had all the guard house I cared about last year."

DICTIONARY OF THOUGHTS.

Cram—A stuffing of the intellectual gullet followed by mental indigestion, hollow eyes, sore-heads and sometimes tobacco hearts.

Pony—Something ridden—balky with a tendency to kick—if the Prof. gets on, the student quits riding.

Fusser's Paradise—Prexy's Panama Canal Lecture.

Cut—A slice of enjoyment, sandwiched between excuse and an E plus.

An excuse—Something to fool the professors.

A condition—Something to fool the students.

Knock—Vibrations from a crane's vacuum.

Rooter—A noise—hog.

Sorehead—One who can't make good.

Rah-Rah Boys—Conklin and Allen.

Prof. Groth says: That he used to fall in love two or three times a day when he was just a boy about fourteen. He says it was just a fancy of childhood days, but it was real just the same. Further he says he used to wear a stovepipe hat when he lived in Dayton and when he went out for a walk he carried a cane. He says that it wouldn't be safe for him to walk across the campus here at Northern with such decorations.

Ora made an angel cake
For her darling Clifford's sake.
For her sake
Clifford ate it every crumb,
Then he heard the angel's drum,
Calling softly, "Clifford, come."
Clifford went.

Some sigh for this and that,
My wishes don't go far;
The world may wag at will
So I have my good cigar.—Gray, the lawyer.

Prof. Groth says he wants to die in the harness—that is to fall off his chair in his class room, then we can carry him home and bury him.

Whenever Poet Everhart passes a note across the aisle to Prophet Kochenderfer, Prof. Groth sees him and "bawls him out."

Prof. Kreglow—Have you seen any song birds yet?

Weaver—I saw a buzzard.

Prof. Kreglow—When?

Weaver—About two years ago.

Lanker (to salesman)—I want to see some hats that will fit my head.

Salesman—"Soft" hat department two aisles to the left, please.

Prof. Beer (in chemistry quiz)—Is carbon a bleacher?

Graft—No. Neither is it a grandstand.

We don't belong to the B. A. D. Companies, we belong to C. We won the contest this year too.

"The man who could love that kind of a woman would be a rare bird"—Prof. Freeman in describing Betty Sharp, one of Thackery's creations.

The passive young man is heaven bound—no temptations of any consequence ever come to him, and you couldn't pry a nickel out of his pocket with a crow-bar.—Prof. Freeman.

Adapt everything and adopt nothing is the pedagogical rule of Prof. Freeman, after having read all the books on pedagogy obtainable.

Get beneath the surface of things and see how much better the tree of knowledge will flourish.—Prof. Beer—Chem. II.

TO PROF. SCHEID.

He calls up our class at 8:30,
 Though we are not always on time,
 He need not be cross and pouty,
 For the smiles of the girls are sublime.
 Now Aline can hold him 'bout level,
 For she has spunk too you see;
 But Blanche is all in a tremble,
 For she is so timid, "Oh, Gee".
 There's Neva and Maude they can melt him,
 But he frowns again so quick
 That when he speaks to Pearl then,
 She says, "He must have got bit."
 Overholt's questions troubles him greatly;
 Thorn's dreaming pricks him too;
 Rutter's smiles make him uneasy;
 And Royer has him going some too.
 Life is not all roses and smiling,
 Nor thorns and troubles, "Oh no;"
 But both make life worth living,
 And keep us on the go.
 So here's to you dear Prof.,
 With your faults as seen by us;
 We hope you'll get a wife Prof.,
 To share them all with us.

Miss Rutter—"Why, yes Prof. I'd be delighted."

TAG DAY AT O. N. U.

When Northern Gets Her Big Endowment

I wonder how it'll be around here,
In about ten years or more,
When Northern gets that big endowment,
She's been toiling and striving for.

I'll bet our president, Doctor Smith,
Will fix things up just right;
He'll probably do so many things
Ne'er dreamed of in the night.

He'll build a wall around the town
And keep the juniors all inside;
So when the Seniors go to Lima,
They can surely enjoy the ride.

He'll take the rules restricting girls,
And throw them out of sight;
So then the girls that want to fuss,
Can fuss around most every night.

The Faculty will be so large,
Each "Prof" will have a snap;
And to the other schools, we'll say,
"Go 'long we do not give a rap."

We'll fix up our athletics,
And send our teams afar;
To keep the school from looking cheap,
They'll travel in a Pullman car.

We will have men's and ladies' dorms,
With dining rooms all nice and neat;
And Hartwell's band with all its stars,
Will entertain us while we eat.

New buildings made of marble white
Will adorn our campus green;
Fragrant flowers and singing birds
About it will be seen.

In honor of our beloved founder,
The Lehr Memorial we will raise;
And its broad and spacious halls,
Shall echo to his praise.

Our streets will all be paved and lighted
To the farthest ends of town;
Automobiles will take us round
And airships up and down.

Then when all this has come to pass,
And all is made so fine and grand,
We'll have the greatest college town
There is in all the land.

Ohio Northern

(This article was found among the private papers of Dix, shortly after his death.)

am Donnan's dog, Dix, and have "been around some." I wouldn't attempt to put my thoughts into writing only I am a product of the transmigration of souls and understand something of the art of speech.

My first introduction to college life at Ohio Northern was at the depot. When I arrived at the station, I was greatly surprised to see so many fellows loafing about. There were so many that I could scarcely find my way through to the Main street. As the train pulled out almost every one started down the street and I went along. I followed Ralph pretty closely for I was not real sure which way to go.

My first harsh introduction to college life was at chapel. The young "humans,"* who are called students, had long-suffering looks on their faces nothing like they might be, if they went to chapel because they wanted to and not because they had to. I've forgotten who spoke that day, but I remember I was awfully bored and barked for joy as soon as the thing was over. Sometimes I guess they have what are called good, intellectual speeches, but, for the most part, the professors don't seem to enjoy chapel any more than the students. Just as I passed out I heard one student say to another, "Don't you think it's a farce to scare the students into going to chapel?"

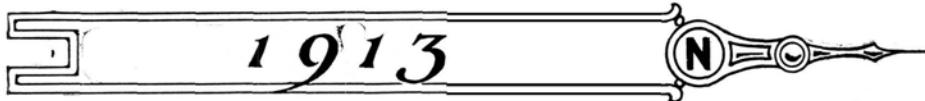

Gee, I'd hate to be a student.

Several days later, I dropped into a room on the southwest corner of the Administration Building, I think they called it. It was about 9 o'clock and a man was sitting in front of a lot of students "spouting." He was telling about a fellow named Browning and knew a whole lot. The most pitiful thing was to see some of those students looking wise. I don't think those young folks knew any more about that stuff than I did. The man also talked about another fellow named Shakespeare, and still another named Tennyson. Then he would say, "Don't you see?" I couldn't see the fellows he meant so I gave up and besides he talked so awfully fast that I thot it best to leave.

After I left that room, I walked down the hall and listened at the next door. I was afraid to go in for there was a curtain on the door, and I thought perhaps I wasn't welcome, so I just listened a little longer. Very soon I heard a man speak in a strange way. He said, "Vell, wir mussen unsere aufgabe lesen." I wondered what that meant, so I listened a little longer. Then he said, "Vell, mein Herr Kommen Sie. What for you so many mistakes make?" Then I heard everyone in the room laugh and some one else said in a clear voice, "Prof. has ein joke gecracked."

I came down stairs, and went into Room No. 9. Here I found a real kind man up in front and he stopped his work and petted me and said I was a good old dog. Then he went on talking about Martin Luther, Julius Caesar, Henry the Eighth, Abraham Lincoln; then he began talking about Moses and Joseph and Cromwell and John Smith and Patrick Henry and Daniel Webster. He knew too much for me so I left.

I came on through the hall and saw a lot more folks sitting on old chairs, all facing a little man with an intelligent look. There was no curtain on either the door or window, so I just watched the performance. The little intelligent man had his feet on the rounds of his chair and was leaning over a desk with a square top. He was talking in an interesting way and all paid close attention. I noticed that all the boys sat up in front, the girls on the middle row and some more boys on the last seat. They seemed to be a very happy bunch.

As I passed along the hall I came to two big doors, but I could not see in very well, so I went up the stairway a few steps and looked over. I saw a fine looking man busily engaged in reading letters, and across from him was a little woman who looked very cheerful and kind. She was busy writing and never looked up. She didn't see me, so I passed on my way.

I saw another door with a sign painted on it. I thought there must be something in that room pretty good for it said "worth" on the door, and I went in. A good looking gentleman in there was talking Latin, my first tongue, and it sounded as if he was giving an oration. Maybe he was mad, because he talked rather sarcastic and convincing. Most of the time, though, he's a good teacher and those that can learn, and those that can't, don't dare to go to sleep, because he never calls on his students in turn. I don't think he was angry though, at least he never gets real mad, so Leslie Williams tells me.

By this time I was pretty tired going to school, so I decided I would go down to the Y. M. C. A. Rooms and rest. I saw a great many fellows down there reading, but as they seemed to be interested, I thought it best not to disturb them; then I walked around behind Ralph's desk, and lay down; and I must confess I slept soundly, except that I dreamed about my experiences of the day, about those professors and all the folks they call students.

Northern Cook Book

Pumpkin Sauce—Take a young "rookie" and let him simmer slowly for a few months. Then add a Northern co-ed and stir well with a long spoon.

Peach Jelly—Take a peach and remove all lady-killers. Add a suggestion of seriousness. Garnish with bonbons and flowers, and turn down gas rather low.

Pear Jelly—Take a well ripened pair. Add some good commencement weather, with a little parents' consent, and bottle for an indefinite period.

Devil's Food Cake—Take a Northern faculty meeting. Mix in a few students seasoned with trouble; then bake in a hot oven and let stand for two weeks.

Gooseberry Jam—Take a good mixture of "rookies" on registration day—let them talk for a few minutes in the University Office, then add a few words of opposition,

A Psalm of "Dix" to Ralph

1. Ralph is my shepherd; I shall not want.
2. He maketh me to lie down on his typewriter desk: he leadeth me beside Prexy's office.
3. He restoreth my bone: He leadeth me in the path of the jackrabbit track for his stomach's sake.
4. Yea though I walk across the grass in the shadow of old Normal I will fear no evil for Ralph is with me: his whistle and his kind words they comfort me.

5. He prepareth a table before me in the presence of his wife; he anointeth my head with love pats; my bowl runneth over with milk.
6. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the Y. M. C. A. rooms forever.—P. E. S.

"Pittsburg Beef Trust, Oh you Cow."

"You had a notion old kid."

"He can't see him—hit it."

"Ball four—strike three."

"Come on now Mills."

"You big rough neck."

"Put it right over."

"Get a ten foot pole."

"Tighten up now, tighten up."

"Everybody hits."

"He's up, he's up, he's up."

"Watch his foot, he never could pitch, he's an easy mark."

"Squeeze that ball."

"You hot hamburger." (But he knocked a home run just the same.)

"Aw! Play ball, quit chewing."

"Hey! you third baseman, we'll knock your block off."

"Kill the third baseman."

"He can't hit a balloon."

"Spike him, don't let him get home alive."

"You're some kid, chew your gum."

"Wait till he spits."

"That's usin' your bean old boy Mills."

AFTER THE GAME.

"15 to 13—we almost got Pitt's goat."

"Did you see that home run of Ports."

"Wasn't that a peach."

"Did you see Bill Starry make second."

"Mills pitched a dandy good game."

"That second was a bad inning."

"Pittsburg sent some ball players all right."

"Well, they know Ada is on the map anyway."

"Did you ever see how easily Mills fanned 'em."

"Gardner was no slouch of a catcher either."

"They nearly killed Ports after he made that homer."

"It was some game."

"Yes I got my money's worth all right."

The Wolf's Tooth

FIRST PRIZE ESSAY

By E. W. Combs

Why the O. N. U. Needs an Endowment of $200,000, and Who Should Help to Raise it.

The O. N. U. needs a $200,000 endowment fund because that amount is necessary to give it a standing equal to other institutions offering the same degree of scholarship.

No institution, regardless of the good it has done to society in the past, can hope to live forever on that basis. This is an age of commercialism and all social factors must conform to its laws. Good intentions and high ideals are good for nothing unless they rest on a firm foundation. And the O. N. U. needs this material foundation in order that it may continue to exist, and to aid this and future generations of boys and girls to become better men and women, for the world requires them.

The money for this endowment should be given by those who feel, by so doing, that they are benefiting society and uplifting humanity. Donations should not be given grudgingly, but spontaneously. They ought to be prompted by love and loyalty, and each giver should feel that he is bestowing a part of himself. Brotherly love for our fellowmen should be the motive.

High 'bove the crowd and the street,
Hangs a bell that is nearly immortal,
Tho' the years with it have been fleet.

It rang when our founder was younger,
When its tower stood alone on the mould,
If its soul could pierce the dim future,
What visions it alone did behold?

It saw college buildings arising,
Great throngs fill each of their halls,
It longs for its founder erected
A memorial with grand, stately walls.

We who list daily its ringing
Hear various words from its gong;
Calmly, it calls each morning
To worship, the gathering throng.

Gladly it rings when a vict'ry
Old Northern adds to its score;
Sadly it chimes when vacation
Parts some for eternity's shore.

Boldly it beckons the soldier
To train for the bloodless fray;
But its best cheer rings in the evening,
When work is done for the day.

Bell! Has thou noted the old man,
Who 'wakens thee each day?
Hast thou seen his step grow slower,
While his hair has turned to gray?

Know, 'tis so with earth's children,
Sometimes thy frame will fall;
Hut thy notes will lire in the mem'ry
Of those who heard thy call.

*So in the men about us,
Not face nor word remain;
But the life that sheds influence
Will immortalize the name.—E. F. Zeigler.*

A Sonnet to Northern

A thot or word, a few brief lines we scroll
Upon the side of Memory's urn;
From it we drink a long last draught, then turn
To onward wend our way to life's great goal.
Faint echos of the past come back anew,
Yet, as we trod this beaten track of life
They speak of cares that once for us were rife
Now by the hand of Time erased from view.

But oh, those things that filled our cups with joy,
How vivid thro' the mist of years are seen:
Again one lives as only when a boy—
When world was wrapped with an enchanted sheen.
Thus shall we live again when old
Our college days within Old Northern's fold.

Dear Old Days at Northern

Oft in the stilly night
While my lamp doth brightly burn,
Stern duty brings to light,
The tiresome tasks at Sorthern.
The cream and jam
For and exam,
Go hard against the will;
The light that shines,
The head that pines,
Grow dim and duller still:
Thus in the stilly night,
While the midnight oil, I burn,
Stern duty's brought to light,
The tiresome tasks at Northern.

When I, those nights recall,
And link them all together,
They touch us, one and all,
Like winds in summer weather:
We re-al-ize
That Northern's prize
Was most worthy to be sought;
That toil and care
Was each one's share
In this quest for knowledge taught:
Thus in the stilly night,
As my heart is wont to yearn,
Fond memory brings to light,
Of dear, old days at Northern.

These College Years

By J. H. A.

What say ye, idler?
Time's gone, ne'er will be regained;
They have flown away,—
These college years.

Have you pressed upward,
Does the goal seem near?
What have you done with them?—
These college years.

The idler wasted his time,
The ambitious improved it,
Oh! how different they have been—
These college years.

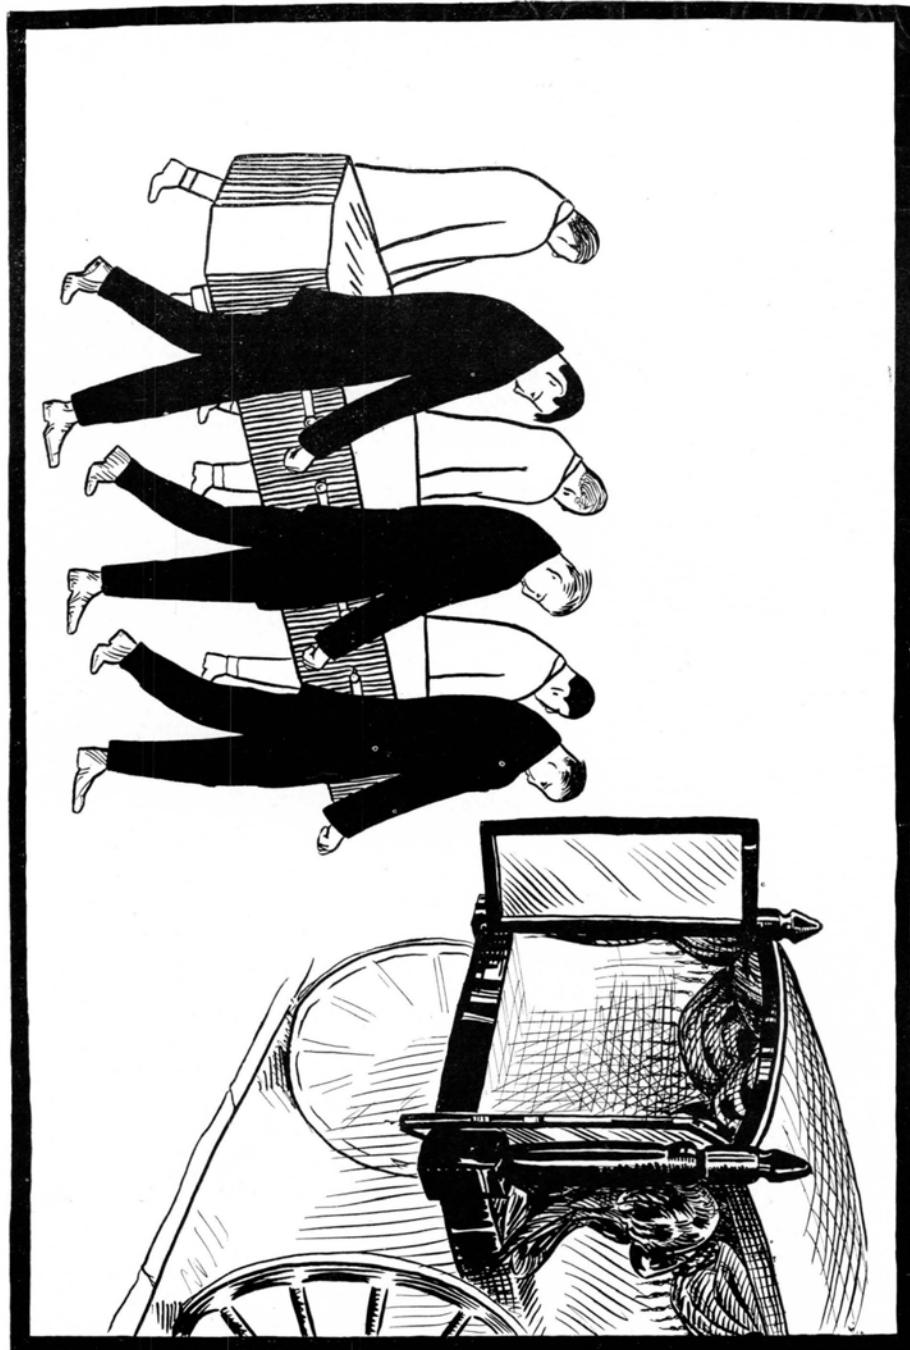

How happy are we now, boys,
Jubilant because of trials overcome,
We've made the best of them, girls,—
These college years.

Know ye, my brave lads,
As life you bravely face,
In memory they will sweetly linger—
These college years.

Other years will come and go,
More trials will be overcome,
But somehow we'll ne'er forget—
These college years.

My Northern

In years to come, and now, dear book,
I hope to come to you and look
Into the past, back into my life,
And grateful be for memories rife;
College days, the last days of youth,
Faces of friends, your lasting truth
So faithfully keeps for the lonely hour,
When reminiscene is in flower,
And blue demons strive to blight it;
The lonely hour, with your thoughts to right it,
Is sure to be cheerful—filled with smiles and sighs,
Smiles of reflection from memory's skies,
Sighs, the breath from a heart that is yearning
For one more day to old Northern returning,
And yet is glad, for my one best friend
Is near me still, and will be, till the end.
